Troop leader sentenced for lewd assault on 4 Scouts

By DENESHUSTY
News-Press Staff Writer

FORT MYERS — A former Cape Coral Boy Scout leader, who pleaded no contest to charges of lewd assault on four boys in his troop, Wednesday was sentenced to seven years in prison to be followed by 15 years' probation.

Parents of three of the four boys involved said the punishment wasn't harsh enough for Alan R. Morris, 35, formerly of 1618 Viscaya Parkway, Cape Coral. The parents of the other boy said they trusted the handling of the case by the state attorney's office.

One parent wrote prosecutors that Morris "must be very sick" (and) deserves more damage because of the amount of damage he has done."

The parents have said they are dissatisfied that state law didn't allow for greater punishment for Morris.

Last month, Morris was allowed to plead no contest to the charges on the condition that he be given the sentence he received Wednesday.

Assistant State Attorney Mark Ahlbrand said he accepted the plea arrangement because the victims were embarrassed and reluctant to testify.

"I felt I did the boys a service. The defendant got what the law was going to allow," Ahlbrand said.

The names of the victims and their families are being withheld by the News-Press because of the nature of the case. The victims ranged in age from 12 to 15 when the crimes took place.

According to court records:

Morris was an assistant leader of a Cape Coral Boy Scout troop.

On several occasions between July 1985 and March 1986, Morris invited one or more of the Scouts over to his house. Morris showed the boys pornographic movies and engaged in sexual acts with them.

After the sessions, Morris would often tell the boys, "Don't tell anyone what I did or my wife will divorce me."

The boys told a fellow Scout what was going on and the Scouting administration was notified. Boy Scout officials contacted police.

However, Morris, who ran a lawn-care service, fled before police found him.

In August, authorities in Bath, Maine, arrested Morris on a Florida warrant charging him with counts of lewd assault and he was brought back to Lee County for prosecution.

Besides sentencing Morris to prison and probation, Lee Circuit Judge R. Wallace Pack said Morris will have to undergo psychiatric counseling and counseling for alcohol abuse.

Scout leader gets 7 years for sexual abuse of boys

By DENES HUSTY
News-Press Staff Writer

The mother of a Boy Scout who was sexually abused by his former Cape Coral troop's assistant leader said that if she had her way, the man would spend the rest of his life behind bars.

"This is not just an isolated case. It's not just one mistake. It was cold and calculated and pretty well-planned. He put a lot of fear in my child's life," the woman said.

However, Alan R. Morris, 35, formerly of 1618 Viscaya Parkway, Cape Coral, will not serve life in prison.

State guidelines recommended that he serve seven to nine years in prison.

Instead of going to trial, Morris pleaded no contest Thursday to lewd assault on four boys on the condition that he be sentenced to seven years in prison to be followed by 15 years probation.

Mark Ahlbrand, assistant state attorney, said he decided to accept Morris' plea to save the victims the embarrassment of testifying in court. Morris will continue to be held in the Lee County Jail without bond until he is sentenced Jan. 7, Lee Circuit Judge R. Wallace Pack said.

Pack also found Morris guilty of the charges, which means that the crimes will go on his record.

The names of the victims and their families are being withheld by the News-Press because of the nature of the case. The victims ranged in age from 12 to 15 when the crimes took place.

The mother, who said she believes Morris should serve life in prison, said she understands that the state did the best it could.

"That's what he (Morris) was going to get whether we went to court or not," she said. Because of that, she said her son should be saved the embarrassment of testifying in court.

"At least I can tell my son that this man is not going to be on the streets for a while," she said.

However, she said she thinks state law is deficient and there should be harsher penalties for sex offenders. The woman said she intends to write to lawmakers to let them know how she feels.

The woman said her son is no longer in Scouting, but he did not drop out because of what happened to him. She said her son now has other school-related interests that take up most of his time.

"I hope they (the Boy Scout organization) have learned from what happened," the woman said.

The mother of one of the other victims said her son is still in Scouting in the same troop and she has confidence in the Boy Scout leadership.

As for Morris being allowed to plead no contest to his charges in exchange for a seven-year prison sentence, the woman would only say that Ahlbrand "has made the right decision."

The father of another victim would not comment on the criminal aspect of the case. He said his son is still in the same Boy Scout troop. The father said he, too, has confidence in the Scouts' leadership.

Alan R. Morris, a Boy Scout troop's former assistant leader, talks Thursday to his attorney, Assistant Public Defender Kenneth Garber, about Morris' no-contest plea to charges of lewd assault on four Scouts.

The family of the fourth victim could not be reached for comment Thursday night.

According to court records:

Morris, an assistant leader of a Cape Coral troop, invited one or more of the Scouts over to his house on several occasions between July 1985 and March 1986. Morris showed the boys pornographic

Former Boy Scout leader faces four counts of lewd assault

BY LINDA WIZNER

Former assistant Cape Coral Boy Scout leader Alan Richard Morris was formally charged with four counts of lewd assault Monday morning and has been ordered to stand trial Dec. 1.

According to Assistant State Attorney Mark Ahlbrand, who is prosecuting the case, Morris is being charged with lewd assault involving sexual activity with four juvenile males. The state attorney's office issued a warrant for Morris' arrest in early August on two charges of lewd assault and one count of sexual battery.

Morris was arrested in Bath, Maine, on Aug. 18 and returned to Lee County where he has been held since Aug. 28. He is being held without bond at the Lee County Jail.

According to court documents, Morris, 35, formerly of 1618 Viscaya Parkway, Cape Coral, has been charged with lewd assault on the four boys. All of the boys were members of Morris' scout troop and had spent the night in Morris' custody on various occasions. The assaults took place between November 1985 and July 1986.

The victims, who are not being identified due to the nature of the crime, have all given sworn statements testifying to the activities they were engaged in while in Morris' care. According to the documents, Morris told the boys, "Don't tell anyone what I did because my wife will divorce me."

Morris had been declared indigent and a public defender was appointed to represent him. The public defender's office has a no comment policy on all pending cases. □
